Meet Derek Johnson, the new County Executive for Marin County

Plus

Understanding the Role of the Public Administrator

Derek Johnson, the new County Executive for Marin, will introduce himself to the Commission on Aging, sharing his background and experience prior to assuming this role. He will provide an overview of the County Executive's Office, highlighting its role in supporting the Board of Supervisors by supplying critical information for policy decisions, overseeing county departments, and setting departmental goals and budgets. Additionally, he will discuss the office's role in managing funding opportunities for local nonprofits, coordinating countywide facility planning, driving legislative advocacy, and mobilizing a disaster service workforce in response to emergencies, among other responsibilities.

Brett Rhodes, the Chief Deputy Public Administrator for Marin County is responsible for the day-to-day management and supervision of the Public Administrator's Office. Brett will be providing an overview of the Public Administrator's Office, which plays a vital role in managing estates and making final arrangements for Marin County residents who pass away without a will or known relatives willing to act on their behalf. Through appropriate probate methods, the Public Administrator ensures that estates are managed effectively until proper distributions are completed.

Brett will also be welcoming Mina Martinovich, the new Director of Finance for Marin County. Mina oversees the Public Administrator's office, along with several other key departments, including the County Auditor, Controller, Tax Collector and Treasurer. Her leadership is instrumental in ensuring the efficient management of our financial operations and resources.
